SUIT IS SETTLED BY COMPROMISE

Litigation Had Been Pending in Courts for Several Years.

(Special to the Times-Dispatch.) Fredericksburg, Va., July 31.—The suit of the heirs of the late Chas. J. Waller against the Piedmont, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, which has been pending in the Circuit Court of Orange County for several years, has been finally settled by compromise. The case was tried in the Orange Circuit Court three times. The jury in the first case returned a verdict of $5,000 in favor of the Waller heirs. This was appealed to the Court of Appeals of the State, and the case was returned to the trial court on error. The second trial resulted in a similar way. In the third trial the jury brought in a verdict in favor of the Waller heirs for $10,000. An appeal was taken from this verdict was taken to the Supreme Court of the State, and the case was returned to the trial court on error. The case was reached by which the railroad pays over $9,000. The case was taken on the contingent fee plan and one half of the sum goes to the lawyers for the Waller heirs. Of the remainder Mrs. Waller receives one-third and the other two-thirds are equally divided. The lawyers in the case were E. H. DeJarnett, Jr., and Messrs. Browning and Shackelford, of Orange, for the Waller heirs; Mr. St. Geo. R. Fitzhugh, of this city, and Mr. Browning, of Orange, for the railroad. J. Conway Chichester, of this city, is the administrator for the Waller heirs.

In the case of H. Curtis Blisco and John L. Carter, of this city, tried at Perrella, in King George County, on the charge of speeding on the public highways in King George County and with chasing a horse on the public road for some distance, as to cause his death from exhaustion, the presiding justices entered a fine of $20 and costs, each, against Blisco and Carter. An appeal from the decision of the justices was taken, Mrs. Marmaduke, owner of the horse, which she claims was run to death by being scared by the automobiles, has entered suit against Blisco and Carter for the sum of $30 for the horse.

GUY DUC DE LORGE MISSED IN FRANCE

His Death Caused by Accident Similar to One Which Befell Lady Paget.

BY LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY. L ESS fortunate even than the new York wife of Sir Arthur Paget, who was killed by a fall from the top of her house, Guy Duc de Lorge, one of the principal gentlemen-in-waiting of the Duke of Orleans, Chief of the Royal House of France, has met his death in an almost identical accident while staying with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jones at their house in Grafton Street, just off Piccadilly. He is supposed to be the family honors and estates by the elder of his two sons, Guy, and now twenty-two years of age.

The late duke was a popular member of the Jockey and other leading Parisian clubs, and when not in attendance on the Duke of Orleans, divided his time between the Jockey Club and the Rue St. Dominique, in the Faubourg St. Germain and his country seat of Comperre, in the Loiret. His dukedom is one of the richest in France, and he is a member of the French Legion of Honor. He is a member of the French Legion of Honor. He is a member of the French Legion of Honor.

Another anecdote was that Seigneur de Lorge, who was Captain of the Guard of the King, was once frequently chosen by the Duke of Orleans to represent him at various State functions. It was a singular circumstance that he was a member of the French Legion of Honor. He is a member of the French Legion of Honor. He is a member of the French Legion of Honor.

One evening after a dinner in London he found time hanging rather heavy on his hands, and not knowing where to go he remembered having heard the name of "Cremorne" spoken as that of a garden that had some analogy to the famous Jardin Mabile of the second Empire, and to the Moulins of the late King. He accordingly summoned a four-wheeler, and instructed the driver to take him to "Cremorne." Now, Cremorne was already a thing of the past in London, having been discontinued years before. The cabman therefore drove the duke hither and thither for a couple of hours, without having the faintest idea of the place to which his fare wanted to go.

Finally the "fare" alighted, and so did the cabman. The duke, who then did not know English very well, endeavored to explain to the cabman, and after holding the door open for the cabman to get into his box and drove straight to the nearest police station, where he declared that he had a raving lunatic in his vehicle who had just been indulging in hideous and extravagant contortions.

The duke was "assisted" to alight by four strapping policemen, and after having been put in a strait-jacket, he was locked in a cell. It was not until the following morning that he recovered his liberty. Unfortunately for him, the police did not consider so laughable that he received very little sympathy from the Duke of Orleans, or any of his friends; but he was far too witty himself not to see the humorous side of this really English joke, swearing, nevertheless, that he never would use pantomime again in un-latin countries, the language of which he was not widely familiar with.

The Duc de Lorge's death is a great misfortune for what remains of the real and unadulterated aristocracy of France, and his loss will be cruelly felt in that quarter. Recent legislation providing for the payment from the Treasury of a salary of £2,000 a year to members of the House of Commons, has led to some extraordinary developments, none more amusing than the petition addressed by the electors of the borough of Southampton, to the Master of the House of Commons, Secretary to the Treasury, against their representative, Mr. Dudley Ward. The latter came to Canada about a year ago, and has not been seen at Westminster since that time. The petitioners therefore demand that since their views are no longer adequately presented in Parliament, Mr. Ward should at once be called upon either to resign his seat, or to return and fulfil the legislative duties for which he is being paid.

Just what steps the government will take remains to be seen, since naturally payment of members of Parliament places them in the category of salaried servants of the State, and on an entirely different footing from the one they occupied without any remuneration. As Mr. Ward is a Liberal, and as such subject to the discipline of the Party Whip, namely, the Master of the House of Commons, the latter has some voice in the matter, while the speaker, too, has certain powers of censure, which might be invoked. Not that Dudley Ward needs the £2,000 salary, for the Duke of Devon, one of the heirs to his great wealth, he is very well off indeed. He is a son of the late W. D. Dudley Ward, of the Hussars, who married the sister of Viscount Escher, and who was in his turn, son of the Hon. Humble Dudley Ward, brother of the late Earl of Dudley. The absent member for Southampton resigned his Parliamentary office as Treasurer of the Royal Household when he left England for Canada, but retained, as above noted, his seat in the Commons. He is a friend and confidant of the Hon. Oliver Brett, who spent so much time on this side of the water, and was, at one time, engaged to Miss Antoinette Heckscher.

The Marquis Louis de Montebello who was killed by lightning at his country seat in the Department of Saône-et-Loire, France, was the son of the Marquis de Montebello, who was French Ambassador at St. Petersburg. I mention this so that he should not be confused with the Marquis Maurice de Montebello, eldest son and heir of the Duke of Montebello, who distinguished himself by a personal encounter with M. de St. Marc at Nice last February, which created quite a stir at the time. The late Marquis would have inherited, of course, on the death of his widowed mother, who, of extremely bourgeois origin, owes her wealth to the Trois Quartiers drygoods store, in Paris. Yet her arrival in to the wives of the French Cabinet Ministers on the occasion of the czar and his family's last visit to France, cost her husband his embassy. (Copyright, 1912, by the Brentwood Company.)

FINES IMPOSED ON RACE RIOTERS

Heavy Punishment for Illegal Shooting—Case Goes to Grand Jury.

The four white men and one of the negroes who participated in a near-race riot Tuesday afternoon in East Main Street, throwing bricks in all directions and causing a great commotion, were fined $2 and costs each yesterday morning in Police Court. The whites were alleged to have made an unprovoked attack upon the negroes in the street, and the negroes were charged with disorderly conduct and fighting. The case was dismissed. Bennie Jones, colored, one of the alleged rioters, failed to appear in court and an attachment was issued for him. Those fined were W. H. Spangler, Willie Higgins, John Maslin and Robert Maslin, all white, and Oscar McMillen, colored. Henry Thomas, colored, was fined $20 and costs for disorderly conduct and for a revolver upon the premises of James Russo, 1914 East Main Street. The negro is alleged to have attempted to shoot two colored women. Justice Crutcher regarded the offense as an unusually aggravated one and therefore imposed the heavy punishment.

Eliah Penny, colored, accused of a statutory crime against Rachel Rick, was held for the grand jury. Wallace Gaines, colored, was fined $100 and costs and placed under $100 bond for twelve months for carrying a concealed weapon, a revolver.

George Imboden. Bristol, Va., July 31.—Miss Carolyn Imboden, daughter of Captain and Mrs. Frank Imboden, and a niece of the late General John Imboden, who married here to-day to William E. George, of Varenton, Dr. Adolphus Kistler, of the Central Presbyterian Church, officiating. They will visit Lynchburg and Washington before going to Warrenton.

Heathsville, Va., July 31.—Miss Kathleen White, the daughter of Captain and Mrs. W. E. White, of Kilmarnock, and William Baskin, Jr., of Liveoak, were married in Leonardtown this morning. After a trip to some of the Northern cities they will be at home in Liveoak.
